COURT OF APPEAL FOR ONTARIO

Moldaver, Cronk and Juriansz JJ.A.

BETWEEN:

Her Majesty The Queen

Respondent

and

Appellant

Robert J. Reynolds, for the appellant

Emile Carrington, for the respondent

Heard and endorsed: March 3, 3011

On appeal from conviction entered by Justice Robert F. Scott of the Superior Court of Justice, dated December 16, 2009.

APPEAL BOOK ENDORSEMENT

[1] This appeal, in our view, is essentially fact driven. Brief though his reasons were, we are satisfied that the trial judge was aware of the inconsistencies in the complainant's and the appellant's evidence. Indeed, he set out three concerns with the appellant's evidence which he viewed as serious. This assessment was clearly within his purview. As for the inconsistencies in the complainant's evidence, the trial judge regarded them as insignificant in the context of the whole of her evidence, which he found she gave in a "clear, concise and credible manner". In the end, having instructed himself properly in accordance with the principles in D.W., he rejected the appellant's evidence and concluded that he could safely rely on the complainant's evidence to convict. We see no basis for concern that the trial judge applied a different level of scrutiny to the appellant's evidence than he applied to the evidence of the complainant.

[2] Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.
